
Comment October 9, 2014

“ Fooled by randomness

Chris Dillow

Investors buy too many expensive actively managed funds because they see skill where none in fact exists, according to new research.